APPLICATION DEADLINE 15 December

SVEPM offers a small number of conference bursary awards (usually up to three, but may depend on financial status of the Society and whether eligible candidates apply). The bursaries aim to attract delegates from European countries that are not usually well represented at the conference or in the SVEPM membership. Therefore, the Society particularly welcome applications from budding epidemiologists or veterinary public health professionals in eastern European and Mediterranean countries, although applications from other eligible candidates will be considered.

The bursaries may be financed by the Society or by sponsors of the annual SVEPM conference.

In honour of the late Professor George Gettinby, a founding member of the society, SVEPM offers one conference bursary award to promote the participation of young researchers from Low and Middle Income Countries. This is an additional award to the three SVEPM bursaries mentioned above.
